Sketchley Grange upgrade the swimming pool ventilation system to improve reliability & reduce running costs

Sketchley Grange Hotel & Spa in Hinckley is an elegant country house hotel, nestled away in the heart of England combining the perfect blend of past and present, with historical character and contemporary design. At Sketchley Grange customer enjoyment is a priority. Their spa and leisure complex is a big draw for customers and regulars alike.

The swimming pool at Sketchley Grange hotel was served by a Calorex Delta 12 swimming pool dehumidifier but over the years the unit had become unreliable. This led to a poor atmosphere in the pool hall and sometimes its closure whilst repairs were made, this was becoming an increasingly worrisome problem for the management and maintenance team alike.

The owners of the hotel called in IAC Service Group Limited for a solution and they recommended that the unit be replaced with a Recotherm Aeris unit.

Once a site inspection was made it was found that fortunately Recotherm made a like for like replacement for the Calorex Delta unit, which could be flat packed to install in the plantroom. However, once it was assessed further it was decided that it would be better sited outside, so the pool room space could be freed up and could be used to store pool activity materials and chemicals, making better use of the space available.

Recotherm units run on 'controlled fresh air' so external siting is natural for them. So on this occasion the decision was taken to install the unit outside the plant room nearby in the service courtyard. A simple concrete base was provided for the unit and the ductwork and pipework was modified. The unit was connected to where the Calorex unit had been. Once sited it was a matter of calibration and was simply plug and play.

Recotherm are increasingly replacing Calorex and Heatstar units in older installations as their technology is proving cheaper to run and the Recotherm in-house service team back up gives long term reliability. Users can rest in peace and tranquility and the Hotel management can go about their daily business knowing that the atmosphere in the pool hall is fresh and well kept.

Vince Man of IAC commented that "We have worked with Recotherm on a number of swimming pool projects in the past.

The units are well built and reliable and always provide a good atmosphere in the pool hall".
